President Xi Jinping (R) smiles as he meets with Australian Prime Minister Malcolm Turnbull at Parliament House in Canberra, January 31, 2015. REUTERS/Terry Gill BEIJING (Reuters) - China and Australia have concluded a free trade agreement (FTA) that will cut tariffs to zero over the next two years and remove remaining obstacles to their free-trade arrangements, a Chinese official said on Tuesday. Australia's trade minister Andrew Robb said on Tuesday the deal to abolish all tariffs would be signed in two weeks, adding "This is good news for jobs and living standards". The FTA will be signed at the Australia-China Ministerial Week in Beijing, the official said. China's Minister of Commerce said in a statement China and Australia had been committed to market-opening since the early 1980s and had met political will to ensure that the FTA reflected that commitment.Raiders re-sign MMQB's Peter King Raiders re-sign MMQB's Peter King The NFL's only journalist based in Massachusetts just got a little bit bigger. As the nation's preeminent voice for the Oakland Raiders, Peter King is an essential part of a fantasy football league of 1,000 readers who this month will select all 32 NFL teams' starting lineups. Just in time for their Super Bowl run, the Raiders are the primary beneficiaries of a deal King made with ESPN's NFL Films and the family-owned MMQB website to expand coverage of the Raiders. "I've been writing about the Raiders since I was nine years old, so this is a great opportunity," King said in a recent interview. King, whose column appeared in the Lowell Sun starting when he was 10, announced last year that he would leave the newspaper and The Boston Globe to work for ESPN full time. But it took about six months and two full jobs — a reporter at Sportsnet in Canada and a columnist for the MMQB — before King was hired by the network in September to work on Raiders coverage. King's first on-air appearance came in October when he went on KNBR's Don & Rog Show to discuss his views on the Raiders heading into the season. He will continue appearing frequently on the station's Friday Night 09e8f5149f

A 20-band magnetic field reference map was established for ferrite nonlinear imaging of silicon and anodized aluminum pixellated plates. The main purpose of the map is to facilitate the evaluation of silicon direct imaging. The map is based on ferrite cylinders of 25 and 35mm diameter, measured at varying distances from the sensor plane, and established by Monte Carlo simulation of ferrite induced interactions on silicon and aluminum. The 25mm cylinder is scanned at the distance where the theoretical magnetic field reversal is equal to the RF wavelength. The 35mm cylinder is scanned at the distance where the maximum induced field is achieved, no matter what the ferrite is made of. The model was verified and validated using experimental data for both ferrite cylinders
