FIFA is an annual series of sports simulation video games for home and personal computers developed by EA Canada and published by EA Sports. The series was originally named The Epic Game, and was first released in December 1989 for the PC. The first game in the series was The Computer Game, followed by Electronic Sports World Cup in 1994. Electronic Sports World Cup 2 was released in 1995, Electronic Sports World Cup 3 in 1997, FIFA 96 in 1998, FIFA 98 in 1999, and FIFA 2000 in 2001. A new title was released each year, except for FIFA 2001, Electronic Sports World Cup 2.0, and FIFA 10, which were released every other year. FIFA's gameplay has seen many significant advances since its debut over three decades ago, and has been present in most versions of the game. The series' success, as well as that of the football genre in general, has been attributed to the gameplay. FIFA has been the best-selling sports game of all time since 2000. The series is published by EA Sports, a division of Electronic Arts. Gameplay FIFA games are realistic simulations, featuring the movement of the players and playing field to emulate real football matches. A system of dynamic player physics (based on the player models) ensures accurate movement and ball control for all players. The engine also supports a range of game options (i.e. CPU AI and / or a human controlled opponent) allowing for even greater control over the actual in-game experience. FIFA World Player of the Year Every FIFA game to date has included a similar selection system, where the player votes for players they think should be awarded the FIFA World Player of the Year award. Players can vote a maximum of 10 times per year. Beginning with FIFA 99, the player votes for up to 10 players as a single group. The top three or four players in each group qualify for the FIFA World Player of the Year final. The categories are - best playmaker, best striker, best defender and best goalkeeper. Each of the four finalists are awarded with an additional prize of a BMW M2. For FIFA 10, the voting system was revamped to allow the player to vote on individual categories for each player. Starting with FIFA 10, the final three players vote for the World Player of the Year. Team of the Year Each year, EA Sports issues an all-star team of the year, based on votes by the players. This team is then featured bc9d6d6daa
