“Teammates run at you from multiple angles, forcing you to be aware of all the movements of your opponents,” said Aaron Harris, FIFA Lead Producer. “By capturing real-world player movements for 22 players, this feature really adds a new level to how you play.” This process is similar to how top football clubs capture player movements and data for their match simulations.” A Pro Player Demo Season brings FIFA to the hardcore through three new Ultimate Team modes. Part of the Dream League community, the Pro Player Demo is an experience unlike any other mode in FIFA Ultimate Team where Ultimate Team players compete for a prestigious honour in this season-long offline competition. “The ultimate goal of the Pro Player Demo is to create the ultimate Ultimate Team experience. Fans will be able to add full squads of real-world footballers to their Ultimate Team squads and utilise the brand new Pro Player Data system to guide their training and planning. “The Pro Player Demo season will be able to be used to train, plan and build a team as we have never been able to in the past with Ultimate Team,” added Wolfenstein. “Players will be able to access their Pro Player Data in-game after the process by using our new Player ID feature, allowing them to instantly access all the information and user data about their Pro Players.” “Players can follow their progress throughout the year in real-time using the new “My Pro Player Demo” feature in the Pro Player menu or they can even watch them in action live in the “Watch the Pro Player Demos” section of the official FIFA Forum.” Through the new Rivals mode, players can choose from one of four teams: the popular English Premier League, German Bundesliga or MLS. “In this mode, players have the opportunity to take on teams from all over the world and compete head-to-head in a series of regional online mini
