Discover the true meaning of war, and discover yourself. The Angels of Redemption are a Chapter who find themselves on the frontlines as the conflict between the Warp and the Chaos Gods reaches its boiling point. You're the only champion they'll trust, but are they... the one who will get you killed? The Disciples of Caliban are a Chapter who managed to stay out of the Chaos Wars for nearly a decade, a brutal period of time in the Imperium's history when the Emperor became a mad dictator who allowed Chaos and the Ordo Hereticus to spread across the galaxy unchecked. Their descent into treachery is a story well-known to all of Chaos, and as such, the Disciples have spent the last few decades trying to earn back the Emperor's trust. Being stalwart champions of the Emperor, and tasked with hunting down the lost heirs of the Chaos Gods, the Disciples would probably never have been called upon to fight alongside the Imperium or the Sons of Horus. But the Horus Heresy has changed everything, and now the Emperor's warriors are in need of all the help they can get. What's new:

. Possessors of a gateway which could allow them to take over the world. Remnants of a deadly extinction that wiped out over half of life on Earth. On any one day, Earth could be struck by something new and old. Something beyond the scope of science. Something that heralded a new dawn or a new age of annihilation. Despite its unpredictability, scientists say that, on a daily basis, humanity is facing an invasion by extraterrestrial beings. And many believe that the aliens are trying to contact us, in order to communicate, or to warn us about an inevitable cataclysm. One of them is space psychologist Andrew Collins. Speaking to Euronews at the European Interplanetary Network (IPN) meeting in Switzerland, Collins says that the invasion is already under way: for the first time, today's scientists have detected UFOs leaving their own solar system. "They're trying to contact us, because they've spotted our planet Earth," the 63-year-old Englishman insists. "And this is the first time we've been able to turn the tables and turn them into real people, an intelligent form of humanity, or beings who are able to do this, and are seeing what we're doing, and offering us a ride across the Galaxy." With an entourage of scientists, scientists and curious onlookers, Collins had set off from London on a mission to take in other worlds beyond this planet. Together with colleagues who sail the waters of the ocean to search the depths of the oceans for life, Collins plans to visit the surface of the moon. "We've come to address the problem that the moon is left out when people speak of aliens," he says. "We are here first. We are actually going to see where the contact has already taken place. We're going to go to where the people are, and find out what is going on in this part of the solar system." Slippery, slippery business. Believing that there are those in the near-earth orbit ready to communicate, the evidence for their existence is divided among astronomers, psychology, physicists and cosmologists. It is also difficult to verify, and there is no consensus. "Today, we have an obsession with contact with the aliens," Collins, who has researched alien abductions for decades, explains. "And today's speculation is, if you
