I'm trying to wrap my mind around the logic behind using float width's in a manner that I am not familiar with. I've been reading about floats, but I still don't have a really good grasp on them. I guess I should use this as an example (from here): .column { float: left; width: 100px

But I'm getting the error: The system cannot find the file specified I've seen on Youtube where others are experiencing the same problem with other videos of the same songs. I saw on the Internet (without tracking it) that they work, but I don't know if you are downloading them from a reliable source. A: Seems like this is working as expected, with the obvious exception of the internet appearing to not love you. Try downloading from a different source (Youtube, Google, etc) that uses a different way of serving content.

Q: get object from collection of objects I have the following collection in my models public class Sale { public int Id { get; set; } public int BuyerId { get; set; } public Buyer Buyer { get; set; } } public class Buyer { public int Id { get; set; } public string Name { get; set; } }

I want to find all the sales where the buyer's name is Bob and then on each Sale, get the Seller. I am currently running a foreach loop, but I am sure that there is a way to do it using LINQ to EF without the foreach loop. Thanks in advance EDIT In my service I am getting the sale by return `DbSet.Find(id)`; and I am trying to get the buyer's name and the seller's name after each Sale. A: If you already have an instance of Sale and you just want to find that specific sale and then grab the buyers's name and the seller's name, then you can use the Select overload of LINQ which takes a lambda expression. `var sale = DbSet.Find(id); var buyersName = sale.Buyers.Select(b => b.Name); var sellersName = sale.Sellers.Select(s =>` s.Name); Q: How to merge two list in python? I am trying to merge two list in python, I have two different list, One list is contains [
