The best-case scenario if you mess with the Amish is that they'll notify the sheriff and he'll come and yank you out of their community. If you're in a town with a large Amish population, you'll see several sheriffs' cars every day.If you are going to be in the Amish community, be in someone else's car, and certainly take your cell phone. Make sure you know the laws around your state concerning militias, carrying firearms, etc. Be aware of your own personal safety and the risk you would be willing to take to get access to what you want. The Amish will laugh at you for even suggesting that they'll let you have a weapon, so it's not worth the risk. I wouldn't be shocked if they asked you to leave. There are many reasons why a permit is important. In the Amish community, it is not likely that they'll take kindly to non-Amish walking into a home. However, if you really want something legal, you can legally obtain it without a permit. Actually, the permit is a ticket that lets them carry the gun, makes sure they don't carry it past a certain date, and lets them open carry with it. From there it is a federal crime to carry it in Pennsylvania without a permit. As others have mentioned, you need to do your homework in order to be prepared. It is easy to get distracted by the beautiful people, such as the Amish themselves. "The Amish: Living quietly in old-fashioned ways in modern America". Good article, by the way. The Amish here often wear their carrying weapons openly, or "painted". An open holstered gun is a normal sight in this area, so they are easily identified. If
