Official MLP Merchandise Hasbro's Wonder Woman toy line is the only toy line I own, but I still buy the pony figures to get my fill of glitter. I've also picked up single action and articulated figures since they were released, but it's always a fun purchase. With the big news of the minimates hitting stores in September, I went out and picked up the best of the bunch. The first thing that jumps out is the packaging. Almost like a mini-bust out, the first page is a color map of the wasteland, followed by a Battle of the Gods style map for the Earth. Seeing as there's no story to hook anyone in, the first page is super helpful. It's an art deco style map of the world, which is a good way to showcase all the places the ponies can go on Earth. In the next two pages are the minimates themselves. The first few pages are great, with a couple of coloring pages, characters' biographies and a clean design. To see which ponies made the cut, you'll have to get the entire series or keep your eyes peeled. With the sixth wave of mini, the quality really takes a turn for the worse. The last two pages are nowhere near as interesting as the previous ones. The final page has a page map of the world, but it's just a black and white map with a few pinup girls. Not a bad set, but I don't think it's worth $10. The box is two pages, giving the amount of minimates inside as well as information on the concept. It's at this point that things get interesting, as it shows what's inside. There's a plastic bag, which is usually the inside of the box. This one is the costume 04aeff104c
